

Dear FCC: Instead of attempting to weakening New Jersey's Do Not Call law, focus instead on adopting it as a model for national legislation. Just because I have purchased something from a business in the past 18 months does not mean that I have invited them to intrude by telephone on the privacy and sanctity of my home. If you disagree with my position, please send me your home phone number so I can call you at dinner time and sell you on the wisdom of a really tough don not call law.
